

The Ultimate Distraction (The Purpose of The Red Horse)

Anger, pride and self awareness when a man is challenged causes the failure that causes the distraction that cause the failure in the first place. The failure cannot be corrected because the distraction that causes the failure is paid attention to because it is there. Therefore, the distraction is caused by the failure and the failure is caused by the distraction. Because the failure continued to occur it cause a distraction that is caused by paying attention to the failure itself.

In this cause this cognisance and paying attention to that negative thing that already proven itself that it can occur. This attention to that failure puts the person under the government of that failure, because that failure was believed upon, authorized and was install as a goal.

The more the man fail the more he believes that the failure is his possibility, this placed him in a difficult disabling place where he can do nothing but fail while he agreeably elected that government of failure.

The same place where the man fail is the same place where he must succeed, and he cannot succeed if his prior failures distracted him. When a man can rise from his failure and succeed he is undefeated, and in order to register such a victory he must get pass his failures, and have his mind clean.

All of his failures that occurred had occurred, and they all occurred because he was not paying attention. Therefore, where he allows himself to conform to the views of those failures and refused to cut himself free from them he cannot overcome them. This is a vicious cycle.

The constant re-visiting of negative non-energy

A negative energy cannot provide a positive result, the spirit must be happy (53) in order to succeed, it cannot bear fruits when it is sad and weak. Neither can a weak and conquered spirit achieve any positive result. Therefore, achieving a happy depress-free spirit () is a vital goal, because the fruits that we bear in life (success) depends on that.

The fight for the re-visiting spirit to be relevant will be consistent, and the reasons it presents will be seemingly justified and relevant, but the only thing to do with that spirit is nothing. Give it no time no voice and no platform. Where such a spirit is given a platform it continues into permanent and install a separate purpose than the one you should be spending time on. Spend no time there. It is distraction in its ultimate form and is there just for the purpose of distraction where the soul is in a different place paying attention to a different thing than where the soul needs to be.

Where such distraction wants to platform itself, there is always something being lost and needs attention to capitalize on.

The spirit of The Red Horse is the purpose and business of distraction, it is that "X" that causes people to lose and every soul that is affected there missed its opportunity and lost and is lost.

The subject matter is persistent, so it will leave when being dismissed and go and return in a different form, stating what was denied and what was your right and how audacious it was to deny you of what they shouldn't have. This is temptation.

The man whose spirit is sealed remain vigilant and focus at all times, and no room is left for leakage. He is on his purpose in season and out of season and remains watchful. The fig tree was out of its bearing season but yet the master requires it to produce when he wanted it to and cursed it because it didn't.

White Rice with Curried Chicken Naturally Seasoned

This shows the power of just enough and staying simple with no additionality. Witchcraft comes in the dining where bottle seasoning was entered and too much, and too many things were added, that food became a curse. All who eat such was spiritually blinded and remained entry into darkness and curse. Their spirits were depressed and a dark government took over their lives. However that government was spiritual and driven from that which was physical, because that spirit that the physical was created in is spiritual. Therefore, the spirit that created the thing is in the thing that it creates. That thing that the spirit created is the same thing as the spirit that creates it, and the thing created by the spirit is as the spirit.

Therefore, a man's spirit is covered where he absorbs too much and too much is consumed, and where too much in any sense that spirit is covered. Now being covered the spirit is blinded and lost the better purpose that it could have become involved in. Now where the spirit is lost the soul is lost. Where there is no purpose there is no spirit, where there is no spirit there is no life, where there is no life there is no soul. Lifelessness is life that is lifeless and less of the life that it is. Where lifelessness disappeared in death life is life in death and the soul is there to experience the lifelessness in death.

The soul that dieth shall surely live, but in death shall that soul live. That which liveth in death is alive in death, though it is in death. Also that which death in life is dead in life, such a soul is a living dead. That soul that a man had not seen in life because it is alive in death had also not seen the soul in life because it is alive in life. Thus a body existed in death as one exist in life.
